The same word, translated bags, will be found in 2 Kings v. 23. Cauls and headbands were nets or fillets to cover the hair: they were strung with gold ornaments or small coins, in patterns more or less intricate. Gold cords were also worn around the head, from which a fringe of precious stones delicately set depended upon the brow and face. This latter ornament is indicated in Solomon s Song: Thy cheeks are comely with rows of jewels, thy neck with chains of gold (i. 10). ROM the second chapter of Genesis, where we learn of the land of Havilah, rich in gold and the onyx-stone, to the closing scenes of Revelation, made luminous with the vision of the...
