The established physician, as well as the established met chant, depends for his livelihood upon his reputation for fair dealing and his ability as a practitioner. TOOTH TALK. The African savages, who polish their teeth to ivory whiteness with the chewed ends of sticks, may be woefully deficient in many ways, but in their extremely careful observance of this hygienic rite they serve as examples to many civilized people. The pToper care of the teeth is quite as essential to the well being of the body as the unceasing vigilance of sentries is to a beleaguered army. The mouth gives access to infection. Unless the teeth are kept clean they will become infected and decay. Tiny particles of decomposed food remain between the teeth and create an ideal breeding ground for germs. When this condition exist these pernicious little enemies find their way into the blood through which they circulate to all parts of the body. They likewise promote the decay of the teeth, which means the breaking down of an essential part of our physical machinery. Proper mastication of food is essential to good digestion and broken, ill-kept incisors, bicuspid and molars do not make satisfactory cutting and grinding machines. As a result, unfair demands are made upon the digestive system and trouble is apt to ensue. With dentistry in its present high state of development, there can be but one excuse advanced for rotting, ill-kept...
